ARRM Director Morales to retire in July

Paul Morales, director of TDCJ's Administrative Review and Risk Management Division, has announced his retirement effective July 31.

Morales has 27 years' experience with TDCJ, having started with the agency as a correctional officer at the Terrell Unit in 1989. During his tenure he served in several positions, including sergeant, assistant warden and senior warden. In 2009, he was promoted to Correctional Institutions Division Region III Director, overseeing operations at 20 facilities in south Texas. He has served as Correctional Training and Staff Development director, deputy director of CID Management Operations and, most recently, division director for Administrative Review and Risk Management.

During Morales' tenure the ARRM Division strived to ensure the agency practices Enterprise Risk Management in order to address and manage a wide spectrum of potential hazards. The division also joined the National Public Risk Management Association, a professional association whose mission is to promote effective risk management as an essential component of public administration.

TDCJ Executive Director Brad Livingston congratulated him on his retirement saying, "Paul has provided leadership and strong operational oversight to the agency during his tenure. His commitment and dedication to our agency will have a positive lasting impact." ●
